

Academic Honesty

Concordia's Statement of Purpose states the importance of Christian virtues and ethical principles. These virtues include academic honesty.

Concordia policy emphasizes that students must document all source material. This is an extremely important rule to remember whether quoting directly or paraphrasing. Failure to give credit to the source results in plagiarism, which can be defined as literary theft. CUW's student handbook calls plagiarism "unacceptable behavior" and states that students will be penalized for it.

Plagiarism: The term "plagiarism" includes, but is not limited to, the use, by paraphrase or direct quotation, of the published or unpublished work of another person without full and clear acknowledgment. It also includes the unacknowledged use of materials prepared by another person or agency engaged in the selling of term papers or other academic materials. Papers handed in for one course may not be used for another course unless specific approval has been given by the instructors. (Concordia University Wisconsin Student Handbook)

Consistency in documentation is important, whether the paper is written in MLA, APA, CMS (Turabian), or another style. Each quotation and paraphrase from a source must be cited within the paper. Each bibliography entry includes the author, title, publication information (city and publisher), and the copyright date.

Check with your professor for the general format preferred by each department.

If you have further questions and/or problems, consult your professor or the Writing Center.